

Green Apple Experience' charter

We, Green Apple Experience as well as the properties owners of our network, consider that our action must be guided by the following Charter's principles:

Engagement # 1: Sharing

« The more we share the more we have receive » Leonard Nimoy. Sharing is the soul of Green Apple. By staying in real Indian houses, you reach the heart of India. In all our properties you will be warmly welcomed and your hosts will be delighted to explain their customs and traditions. Do not hesitate to ask questions! You will learn a lot about India staying in a house that will be a home from home.

Engagement # 2: Preserve the heritage

The history of the population must be preserved. The properties highlighted by Green Experience reflect part of the Indian heritage. Houses, objects, villages, each of them reveal a story. Green Apple and the properties owners preserve this heritage by restoring and sharing this experience.

Engagement # 3: Act locally

Bringing tourism in to villages is largely profitable under the condition that local resources, whatever they can be, are used (sustainably of course). In our properties, most of the meals served to our guests are prepared with local products. In addition, the employees very often live nearby the property and most of them are employed all year long.

Engagement # 4: Eco-friendly practices

Everyone, at this level, helps build a better environmental world. Waste disposal, water, energy recycling, production or recycling materials are important issues that need sustainable solutions. All our properties are involved in these matters in order to contribute to the preservation of our precious resources.
